Michael T. Darda, ROTH MKM's Chief Economist and Market Strategist, has a unique approach that combines macroeconomics with market strategy to deliver timely and high-impact insights to clients. His research is designed to guide equity and fixed income investors toward higher risk-adjusted returns by determining where we are in "the cycle" using leading indicators, the credit markets and business cycle history to identify inflection points. Mr. Darda is a frequent guest on financial television and radio, especially in times of uncertainty. He is frequently quoted in the WSJ, NYT, Barrons and other financial publications. Having started his career in the Wisconsin state legislature, he understands how the legislative process works and how policy decisions are likely to affect markets. Mr. Darda was a recurring guest at the prestigious Santa Columba monetary conference put on by the late Nobel Prize winner Robert A. Mundell. He has also been a guest lecturer at Columbia University, speaking on major market trends that drive markets. A Wisconsin native, Mr. Darda graduated with honors in economics and public relations from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. He holds the rank of black belt in Brazilian jujitsu and was a silver medalist at the 2021 IBJJF World Master JiuJitsu tournament in the brown belt division. He resides in Naples, Florida with his wife Meg, a healthcare executive, and their Weimaraner Claus Von Darda. (Source: ROTH MKM - 04.25.23)
